To Whom It May Concern,

Mr. Jatan Bhatt worked as a summer intern at SNC-Lavalin Nuclear and for my project from June 11, 2018 to August 31, 2018. During his tenure, Jatan worked with various ages and levels of maturities of Engineers and Technicians on tasks involving complex tooling systems used for the inspection of nuclear power systems.

Jatan was quick to learn the concepts and some skills with respect to the tooling operation. Jatan was assigned tasks which utilized standard analytical skills to find trends in data and to assist our team to metric past work to determine the best areas to direct future investigation for operational improvement. To this end, Jatan exhibited excellent skills with data sorting and graphing trends. He effectively reported to the director for this task, and the Director was very pleased with the results.

In addition, Jatan performed other administrative duties within our program including assisting one of our technical leads with the execution of a training curriculum. To initiate this, the technical lead had Jatan take the classroom session of the course, and despite missing most of the first day of one week of the practical course, and having no prior training in the systems, Jatan passed (80%) a practical exam that several of our experienced personnel had difficulty passing.

We can provide more examples and anecdotes of Jatan's proficiency and capabilities, but what impressed us most was his professional attitude. Jatan acts with an efficiency and eagerness to get things done, but he is also quick to verify that he is doing things well, and that he is obtaining any advice that is available. Our team gave him some interesting challenges, and some more tedious challenges, and his behaviour and engagement was consistent in all cases.

I am happy to provide Jatan with a strong recommendation for his future opportunities, and I wish him success in his next endeavors. He is welcome back at SNC-Lavalin whenever he is looking for employment.

Yours truly,

Edward Caton
